“ Carolyn,
We became sisters when we were six years old. From that time on until we went away to college we did almost everything together. We built forts in the kudzo maze, read as many books as we could, rode our bikes, got into trouble together, learned to drive together, double dated, fought, laughed, and cried together. Those are times I will never forget. I don't know what I would have done without you.
