“ Uncle Howard; I still remember when he and Aunt Eloise and their family lived in a red brick house on the top of a hill behind my Dad's wood shop. I was at my Dad's shop a lot, and with four cousins on the hilltop behind it our comings and goings produced a very well-worn path through the woods. Uncle Howard worked for the railroad, which was fascinating to me, and I was always interested whenever he talked about things he did on the job.
