“"J.P.," as we always called him, was an important part of most of my adult life. For many years, he rented an apartment from my mother, Mrs. L. G. Hester, on Short 6th Street. Throughout the years, we were always happy to see J.P. sitting on his front porch and to chat with him. We appreciated his sound common sense, his sense of humor and story-telling talent. He will be greatly missed, and I share his family's grief at his passing.
